6. We highly recommend that our students participate in the COP 5001 Experiential Learning Preparation Course. This course is 0 credit and therefore you will not incur a fee for your participation. The course description is as follows: This course provides guidance and support for CPS students who are interested in searching for an academically relevant work assignment so that they may practice their academic theories in a real world work environment. Throughout the course, students will work through each required preparation component needed for conducting a successful internship or co-op search. This course assists students with resume and cover letter writing, interviewing and networking skills, business etiquette, job search strategies and action steps. Students will gain a greater understanding of the CPS cooperative education and academic internship policies, procedures and expectations.

The final goal of this course is that students can begin their search with a complete tool kit and strategies for increasing the probability of success. Students who secure an experiential learning opportunity will also understand and be prepared to apply experiential learning theory to their work experiences; and to begin their experiential learning co-requisite course called Personal and Career Development COP3940/6940.
